IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

In early 1972, The University of Michigan will make available a

COMPREHENSIVE CUMULATIVE INDEX

to the first five volumes (1967-1971) of

Language and Language Behavior Abstracts

Included within this invaluable key to the world's literature in language and language behavior will be an author index, an extensive subject index, a book review index, a list of all the current subscription addresses to the publications abstracted in LLBA, and an indication of the total number of abstracts selected from each of these primary sources.

The price of this complete tabulation of all the articles cited in LLBA is $60. The purpose of this set of indices is to make readily available, in one convenient place, a sufficient amount of information about each abstracted article to permit the scholar to determine its relevancy to his interests. As a continuing aid to the student of language and language behavior, each issue of LLBA now contains four indices (author, subject, book review, and source publication), and an annual, separately published, cumulative index is sent to each subscriber. This service started with Volume VI (1972).
